Everyone that I've spoken to agrees that I should advise Addison as to the court trial that I'm currently in regarding your mom so that way she's not caught off guard if I have to go to jail it will help build her up

You just told me last week that you wouldn't do that to Addison because of her mental stability. Stop trying to hurt my family through Addison. You don't have another criminal hearing until the end of next month, there is no reason to say that to Addison except to try to disparage my family for reporting a crime or to apply pressure to me or my family not to cooperate with the criminal investigations and prosecution.

If you end up having to face criminal consequences for willfully violating a restraining order, we can discuss it with Addison in a therapeutic setting once she starts therapy. Since you don't have a criminal hearing for another month, there is no reason to worry Addison. We can get the help of her therapist once she starts.

I'm at Starbucks, facing the Mexican food restaurant, just between two bigger cars so its hard to see my car.

Can you call me back, just worried since you still aren't here to drop off Addi with me and I haven't heard from you.

Rebecca Lohman on 3/1/2024 at 6:20:45 PM said:

I see you checked the messages 30 minutes ago but didn't pick up when I called just now.
